In talking of these things he pictured the contrast witnessed in his own constituency, observing that one not familiar with the ramifications of the lake shipping, would fail to appreciate the tremendous extension of this traffic. It was during the march to the tide flats that the two Hindus were injured, the police being powerless to protect them.

After the Asiatics had reached the tide flats they were all rounded up in a body and driven to the police sta-tion where they spent the night.

This morning the Mayor called special meeting of the council and after the adjournment he assured the Asiatics that they would be protected. During the forenoon about 150 left Bellingham with the intention of re-turning to Vancouver.

The labor men declare that their presence here will not be tolerated and the tide flats, determined to follow the further trouble is feared to-night.

Hon. Wm. Templeman on Behalf of President of Local Women's Council Thinks Opinions of That Body United States Gives Medals Are Unchanged.

Mrs. R. S. Day, president of the local Women's Council, was seen this morning in regard to a letter which is printed in this issue from Mayor Mortey, which implies somewhat vaguely, per haps, that the ladies would reconsider their position in the matter of the rest tent at the fair. She stated that there had been no meeting of the council since last July, and therefore nothing had been done in the matter. The executive would meet, however, next Monday and then the subject would be discussed in all its bearings. She did not think, however, that their opinions would have changed. Personally, she was of the same opinion as formerly and was strongly opposed to having anything to do, with the exhibition while liquor was sold on the grounds. Discussing the plan of the Agricultural Society to take a vote on the subject of liquor selling on the grounds, Mrs. Day thought it would not be a fair test of the feelings of the people, because very many of those who opposed the saloon business on the their position in the matter of the rest gent to the captain and first officer of the Quadra two gold watches, and to each of the boat's crew a handsome gold medal, in recognition of their ser-vices in rescuing the captain and crew of the barkentine Coloma' on Decem-ber 7th of last year.

Mr. Templeman made a compliment-sery speech in which he said that the action of Mrs. Patterson and the Daminion government steamer Quadra was received with satisfaction by everyone. It was pleasant to know that when called upon there were men and women willing to risk their lives in the service of their fellows. Ten lives had been saved in this instance, and the American government in making this recognition were not paying for the services rendered, but simply recognizing cases of heroism which had been brought to their notice. Personally he thanked them for so well upholding the name and traditions of Canadian sailors in doing their duty so well. saloon business on the posed the saloon business on the grounds would absent themselves on account of the action of the society. This voting, she says, is just a scheme to get them to attend the fair.

It is the opinion of the ladies that the statement regarding the selling of liquor made by the Mayor is not true, or he is migraken in the matter. They have every reason to believe the tiquor have every reason to believe the liquor will be sold both in restaurants, and almost everywhere throughout the fair

—It having been made public that F. M. W. E. Oliver, the reeve, had also affered to dedicate his half interest in the Shoal Bay property and his offer still stands. In these circumstances F. B. Pemberton has consented to allow his former offer to stand and a public petition is now being circulated for completing the acrescue, and he thought the whole crew of the steamer were as worthy of recognition as the four men, for any of them would have been proud to be chosen for the Guty. The United States government could not, however, recognize all of them, but they presented each man with ten dollars in ing circulated for completing the acquisition of these properties.

One of the ablest foreign authorities says that more urgent than a constitution for China or the amalgamation of the opposing Chinese and Manchus is the question of an heir apparent, which the dowager empress, the greatest of all Manchus, closely identifies with the continuation and security of the dynasty. The question has not been raised since the time, subsequent to the dowager's deposing of Prince Chun's son, Pu Chun, in accordance with the protocol of 1901, when a majority of the imperial clans reaffirmed royalty to Pu Chun. This action caused a dangerous scandal, and was regarded as an affront to the powers, threatening a renewal of the compilications. Los Angeles, Sept. 4.—For the second time within a week a street car was held up and robbed at the point of a revolver by a robber so slight and possessed of such delicate features that the police believe the crimes to have been committed by a woman in man's attire. Just before midnight a Hesper avenue car between Ascot park and Compton street, in the suburbs, was boarded by the robber as the car rounded a curve. The motorman and conductor were held up at the point of a revolver, yielding about four dollars. The highwayman was confused by the fact that the conductor was running the car while the motorman was at his lunch.

Another Meeting of Directors of the Illinois Central-Officers Decline to Talk.

New York, Sept. 4.—The directors of the Illinois Central met to-day to ad on the business brought to a sudden close a week ago. As the by-laws of the company permit a special meeting to be called by two directors, the conclusion was reached in Wall street that the session had been called by Stuyessant Fish. Those who attended were Harshan, Goelet, Peabody, Hackstaff, Auchincloss, Vanderbilt, Cutting and Beach.

At the offices of the company it was stated that no information regarding the meeting would be given out. Mr. Fish decilined to make any statement regarding what had taken place. President Harshan could not be found after adjournment.

According to a statement given out by the company's secretary, after his return to Chicago last week, the resolution offered by Mr. Fish that caused the class between Fish and Harshan asked for-certain information regarding changes in the company's methods of accounting. The resolutions were said to contain certain charges against the present management. They allege, it is said, that the affairs of the Illinois Central are virtually being conducted from 120 Byoadway, the office of the Union Pacing. They affairs of the Illinois Central are virtually being conducted from 120 Broadway, the office of the Union Pacing. They likewise contained clauses questioning the legitimacy of ceriain financial transactions in which the Illinois Central had been engaged. With the adoption of the resolutions to-day it was understood that some answer will be prepared by the management and submitted to the board next Wednesday. It is also said that the resolutions submitted to-day will express Mr. Fish's contention and views of the present management of the road in most vigorous terms, although the sting was removed.

COADJUTOR BISHOP OF FRISCO.

Rochester, N.T., Sept. 4.—Rev. Dr. Edward J. There seems to be no doubt, however, that the name of Dr. Hanna is one of those that have been sent to the Pope by the immovable rectors and the counsellors of San Francisco asking for a selection to be made by the pontiff for the appointment.

A "KNOW-CANADA" TRIP.

Canada pays the penalty of greatness of territorial extent, in the difficulty which her people have of becom-culty which her people have of becoming acquainted with one another, and with even that comparatively limited belt, stretching from Cape Breton to Vancouver Island, in which there is a considerable population. Most of Canadians know is a general way that they have the best water ways, the largest wheat growing areas, the finest timber belts and works in connection with mining, and bridge building, etc., in the world.

But Canadians, in the mass, are so busy geveloping the rich, but raw resources of their country, that when they do get an opportunity to cross the continent, the magnitude of their country, and the activity and optimism evident on them. morning by Mr. Speaker Sutherand, of the Canadian House of Comis a busy man, and this is his first visit to that section of Canada west of Winnipeg, and to the best province of Canada, namely, British Columbia. Talking this morning of the revelation which his trip from Halifax to Victoria had been, he said that he thought the parliament of Carada should prolong a session and devote at least month to a trip across Canada from sea to sea. The suggestion was made in a semi-jocular manner, and was supplemented by the whimsical suggestion that stops might be made at the different provincial capitals long enough to polish off such parliamentary business as had accumulated during the interim consumed in travelling.

Canadians have of late years taken some pains and spent some money to allow those of other countries an opportunity to know Canada. Why should deal yearly with the affairs of the furtherest corners of the Dominion, not also have the opportunity of seeing for themselves the great constituency with which they have to deal?

It is not often that a situation with which all students of political history are familiar, is as aptly expressed as the following by a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette, in discussing Socialism: How often does it happen that an agitator of ability, after winning popularity with the masses, succeeds in attaining a position which brings him into contact with men who know more into contact with men who know more than he did hitherto, and show him the privilege of granting a license t futility of platform promises? For an honest man the position is a difficult one, as he cannot reject enlightenment and its consequential responsibility, nor can he altogether repudiate previous utterances. Such a man deserves a ceasin measure of sympathy, and ust need considerable moral and physical strength to withstand the unreaoning attacks and cries of "traitor" from associates and constituents who have not had his enlightenment.

What Other People Think THE FALL FAIR.

To the Editor,—Permit me through the columns of your paper, on behalf of the executive of the Agricultural Association, to clear up a misunderstanding that has already led to much uncalled for discussion.

On February 11th our secretary received a communication from the Council of Women inclosing two resolutions.

Later a large deputation of ladies waited upon the Mayor, as president, and stated that the Women's Council were not asking that the sale of liquor be prohibited altogether, but that it be restricted to the race track portion of the fair grounds.

The fact is the executive has not had, nor has, any intention of permit-ting the sale of liquor at any other part of the fair grounds than at a bar un-der the grand stand, conducted under strict supervision.

Already arrangements have been made for rest tents, and it is the object of the executive to do all in its power to make the women's interest in the fair as great a success as any other feature, and as a proof of its intention to be guided by the wish of the majority, it has been arranged that an expression of opinion by ballot shall be obtained from all who patronize the fair on a full ticket as to whether next year the sale of liquor shall be entirely prohibited at the fair grounds or not, the plan-of which will be advertised later.

BLUEJACKET MEETS DEATH. News was received at the naval yard, Esquimalt, yesterday, of the accidental death of Able Seaman Hansey on board H. M. S. Shearwater at Dutch harbor, Alaska, on August 5th. Tommy, a lad of thirteen, is the celloist. Margery, the oldest girl, who is twelve, is the trap and drum artiste, while little Gladys, who is only nine, attracts great attention by extracting the most pleasing music from a violin almost as big as herself.

Every number on the lengthy programme received an enthusiastic encore, but the one that attracted the most attention was the trio on the saxaphone. The artists gave a sacred selection, "Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters," in the most artistic style, and with considerable feeling, and as an encore the oldest boy gave a baritone solo, "Asleep in the Deep." This number, too, received the hearty applause of the audience.

WRESTLING.

If local sports were as sensitive to danger and as quick to alarm as the Japanese they might see grave danger in the coming arrival in this country of the "strong man of Japan." That individual, who, by the way, bears the terrible name of Temamon Hitachivama, arrived in town yesterday, says he New York Evening Sun, from Sethe New York Evening Sun, from Se-attle, Wash., where he arrived last Sunday on the steamship Kaga Maru from Tokio. This monster Nipponese weighs 330 pounds. He is the champion of champions in his native country. If this man could not subdue the United States by buil force he might, indeed, try consuming the fat of the land to States by bull force he might, indeed, try consuming the fat of the land to the starvation of all its people, for, according to fellow passengers on the Kaga Maru, Hitachlyama thinks nothing of a meal aggregating a peck of food which is followed by seventeen quarts of Japanese wine. After such a meal it is Temamon's joy to toy with dumbells weighing fifty pounds aplece. Never before, perhaps, did an athlete come to America in the manner that Never before, perhaps, did an athlete come to America in the manner that Hitachlyama comes. It isn't often that a government will stand for the expenses of a globetrotter whose only claim to distinction is his brawn. But in Japan wrestling is looked upon in a much different light than in America. There it is a high art—a mastercraft—and to aspire to proficiency therein is considered an ambition most worthy. It appeals strangely to the American sense that this 330-pounder, who gorges food and drink, should be a social lion. But we are told that he is highly honored at home and that his trip abroad was the talk of the higher social circles. This seems to be confirmed by the reception which he got both at Stattle and here.

In Japan statesmen are intimate with proficient wrestlers, and this one has the ear of the Emperor. At Scattle he was rectived by the Japanese as we are accustomed to receive a statesman or a brilliant diplomat, and his reception here was hardly less formal and distinguished. He is being enterstanced at the Nimon Club, on West tained at the Nippon Club, on West Eighty-fifth street, although the Astor House was to have been his hotel.

Hitachiyama comes to America to learn American methods, in athletics. With these he hopes to add something to the art at home. The trip has more than the sanction of the Emperor and, although Hitachiyama is possessed of great wealth, a government concession will defray his expenses. After his tour of America he will visit Europe. None of the more notable Japanese who have recently visited America has travelled with more ceremony or ostentation than this representative of Japanese athletics. He is accompanied by a personal escort of three. These act both as companions and servants. Their dutles are many. Their master is most exacting and his needs demand the most prompt attention to escape verbal lambasting. Such verbal maullings are delivered in a bear-like voice and seldom need repeating. The escort is the pick of the wrestlinig talent at Tokio. The men are aspirants for future homors, but for the present, to appear to have no higher aim than to serve a great master well.

The respect which is shown Hitachiyama as the representative of the highest skill dates back for ages. He comes from a family distinguished for athletic skill. With his 300 and more pounds of plain, ordinary Japanese fat, Hitachiyama is not very handsome from the American way of thinking, but that doesn't matter in Japan, Hitachiyama is 38 years old. He became champion six years ago, when he defeated Ohnogawa, who had held the title for many years. His methods of training are directly opposed to those thought best in America, He stores away an amazing amount of food of all kinds. A crowd of companions on the Kaga Maru were edified one day by the sight of the wrestler as he

Hitachiyama himself tells the story of his lineage and the great wrestlinig reputation of his ancestors.

"I was born-January 19th, 1874," he says, "the eldest son of Takanari of the house of Ichige enjoyinig the distinction of the Samurai class, a retainer and instructor in the knightly arts by right of inheritance to the Clan of Mito, a relative of the Tokugawa Shogun, who held the sceptre of the feudal government.

"A wrestler by the name of Hajikami, of the province of Omi, won the best of the day with his superior craft, and finding no one who dared to challenge him for the supremacy, he caused the rope of 'Shime' or sacred thread to be taken down from the 'Torii,' the arch dedicated to the shrine, and placed it around his waist, declaring that he would surrender the victory in favor of one who may touch this rope.

"'Yokozuna,' which literally means rope at side,' originated in this historic fact. Subsequently, in a wrestlinig match held in 1630 to commemorate the match heid in 1630 to commemorate the festival of a god at Shitaya-Shiwo-Machi, Yeddo, now Tokio, a wrestler named Shiganosuke Akashi proved himself the foremost victor and was allowed to show a mark of distinction by wearing 'Yokozuna,' in addition to the title of championship which he obtained. The 'Yokozuna,' henceforth. tained, The 'Yokozuna,' henceforth, has been inherited till the present time, in which I have the honor to be entitled the nineteenth in successi

RUGBY FOOTBALL. THE OPENING PRACTICE

The first regular practice of the Vic-toria Rugby Club is called for Sunday morning on the Oak Bay grounds. Sev-eral candidates for the team turned out in uniform for a little preliminary work last evening, among them Bill Moresby and Bill Blackbourne, both of whom inand Bill Blackbourne, both of whom in-tend to play regularly this year.

There is every indication that the Victoria team this year will be a heavy and a very speedy aggregation. The great fault of last year's team was its lack of weight. This year, however, there will be no difficulty in the weight ine, as quite a number of husky nev prayers will be found in the front ranks. Bray, who played the game here a couple of years' ago so effectively, and Williams, a Welsh player of prominence, have intimated their intention of joining the ranks, and Gamble and Gillespie will likely also be to the fore.

Taking the situation all round it Taking the situation all round it looks as if the team this year will be the best in several years, and it is the opinion of enthusiasts that Rugby is slowly but surely regaining its old time popularity in the city.

It is expected that a large number will turn out to the initial practice on Sunday morning.

CRICKET.

A DRAWN GAME.

The third and final test match be-tween England and South Africa in cricket was concluded recently. The game had to be left drawn with honors about evenly divided. For two innings England had made a total of 433 runs. When the game concluded South Africa had a total of 337, and had still six batsmen to go in. The Colonials had a total of 337, and had still six batsmen to go in. The Colonials wanted 97 runs to win, and it is the general feeling that the six men to bat would have been good enough for a hundred runs. So though the match has been drawn the result is, if anything, more favorable to the Colonials than to the Englishmen. The result of the three test matches is—England won one and two have been drawn, and the South Africans have been defeated three times alto-gether during their tour.

My career as a wrestler began in 1891, or at the age of 17, from which time I studied and practised for seventeen years, or up to the present time. In 1993 I was honored with the title of 'Yokozuna,' in addition to the championship of wrestling in Japan.

"As to the title of 'Yokozuna' an explanation may not be out of place. A planation may not be out of place. A festival was held on May 20th, according to the old calendar, 363. A. Novel Experiments in Prophecy Professor Milne "Hatched Down Below."

An astounding series of experiments made by Professor Milne, the greatest master of setsmology in the world suggest that our cilmate is "hatched down below," says a London exchange. Many people had a similar view of the origin of recent weather, but Professor Milne gave the British Association the first scientific prof. prizes of $75.00 and $25.00 will be given for the bronchos giving the two best exhibitions of bucking. There are already seven entries, as follows: John Richtor, Keremeos, winner of belt for 1906; Joe Samproe, Douglas Lake; E. M. Ellison, Chilliwack; O. W. Walker, Monte Creek. The association is shipping a carload of bronchos this week from Chilliweck, under the supervision of O. W. Walker, one of the riders, and three are expected to reach the city to-day. There will be altogether about 12 or 14 of the wildest and most unridable animals in the province gathered at the fair. It appears that last year there was some doubt on the first scientific proof.

The tale of his experiments was one of two new discoveries announced of possibilities. He has made the discovery much fit the same way as the X-ays were discovered. He has been in the habit of leaving an ingenious photographic arrangement in quarries at night, with certain astounding results. It appears that last year there was some doubt on the part of some of the spectators as to the genuineness of the contest. This year, however, in order to remove any such misgivings, the association has offered to give to an amateur among the spectators who can keep his seat on any of the bronchos for ten minutes, the horse upon which he rides.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist these organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbage, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restret the lame back, rheumatism and sciation, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal sction. Cabin Passenger on Atlantic.

New York, Sept. 4.—Customs officials unearthed a smusgling scheme yeaterday when they ordered the arrest of W. L. Hardy and Burton Baldwin, cabin passengers on the steamer Kron Prinz Wilhelm, an hour after the arrival of the vessel.

The search of Hardy's luggage resulted in the discovery of several phousand dollars worth of lace, which was pinned inside shirts, pajama suits, sleeves of coats and legs of trousers, in the trunks and in the pockets of a huge travelling coat which Hardy carried on his arm. When Customs of mespector Campell looked inside the first shirt and saw that it was full of lace, Hardy sald coolly, "Never mind taking out the others, they are all alike." The customs officials think they have uncovered a syndicate of smugglers uncovered a syndicate of smugglers who have within the last three years brought into this port more than $1,-000,000 worth of dutiable goods.

Mr. Scowcrott, on behalf of the excursion committee, reported that in spite of the inclement weather on Labor Day, there was a balance on the right side to the amount of about eighty dôlars. Those present had passed a very pleasant day, the weather being finer at Vesuvius harbor than it was in Victoria.

The annual meeting was arranged to take place on Wednesday, the 18th inst., at 8 p. m. If the new physical director, w. G. Findlay, is present it is probable that advantage will be taken of the occasion to give a reception to introduce him to the members. According to the constitution it is necessary that nominations for new directors be handed in to the nominating committee on or before Wednesday of next week. Nominations can be made only by active members. The following members retire this year: Messrs. Bannerman, Wootton and Whittington. Besides these there are three other vacancies to fill. The nominating committee consists of Messrs. Socwcroft, Mc-Micking, Dr. Clemence, R. W. Clark and S. Johns.

A suggestion was made at the meeting that the association should be the side of the second.

A suggestion was made at the meeting hat the association should try to secure tea rooms or something in that line at the fall fair. A committee was accordingly appointed to make inquiries regarding the same.

The secretary's report showed that employment had been found for ten men during the month, and that thirteen had been placed in rooms. A small new office for the secretary had been made with the help of J. Isler, who donated his services. The camp at the Gorge had broken up at the end of last week and had proved-very successful.

at the end of last week and had proved-very successful.

Eight new members applied for mem-bership and all were accepted.

It is expected that at the annual meet-ing the directors will be able to show a clear sheet for the coming year. There is a little money needed just now to close up the dull season, but this, it is hoped, will be forthcoming in time for the wind-ing up of the year's accounts.

There being no more business to trans-act the meeting adjourned.

ADVERTISE TO KEEP TRADE.

A short time ago the business men of A short time ago the business men of Wilmington, Del., met 'n solemn conclave to determine the best way of keeping trade at home. A lecture by Clement H. Lippincott, of Lippincott & Co., of that city, seemed to offer the correct solution. Mr. Lippincott sald: "Gentlemen, this is all very well, but you have not hit the bull's-eye. What is needed is for merchants to advertise enough to let people of this city know is needed is for merchants to advertise enough to let people of this city know what is to be found in local stores. "When a dealer purchases a new stock and fails to let the consumer know about it the blame for the loss of such amount of money to the city, as has been stated, lies wholly with the merchant himself," said Mr. Lippincott. "The people have no way of knowing what can be had here beknowing what can be had here because they are not informed. Mr. Eippincott told the business men Mr. Eippincott told the business men present that the rates with the newspapers of Wilmington were extremely reasonable compared with what the Philadelphia papers charge, yet many of the merchants of that city know the value of advertising, and do it. It was pointed out that all kinds of schemes could be tried to hold the trade in Wilmington, but first of all the consumer must be informed of what he can secure in this city.

Mr. Lippincott referred to the local newspapers and pointed out that while Philadelphia business houses are using advertising columns in Wilmington newspapers, many local merchants do not have a line of advertising of their wares, yet expect to commete with the wares, yet expect to compete with the Philadelphia stores.

Three Thousand Men Are Engaged in Work of Building New Industrial Centre.

INDIANA CITY

The news that the United States Steel Coroporation has decided to invest $45,-000,000, in addition to the original appropriation of $75,000,000, in the construction of its model city, now rising on the southern shore of Lake Michigan, adds interest to the great experigan, adds interest to the great experi-ment in city building in modern times, says the New York Dispatch. The lo-cation of what its promoters claim is the coming steel cepital of the world is less than half an hour's ride by rail from the metropolis of the West and is in Indiana, on the southeastern shore of Lake Michigan. On the site of what was little more than a year ago a waste of sand hill-

On the site of what was little more than a year ago a waste of sand hill-ocks and dunes, and at the point where the sluggish stream called the Grand Calumet empties into the take, the new industrial city, which has already made the desert-looking lands which shade off into the prairies a scene of business activity, is rising, not slowly and as a process of growth in the usual fashion. of growth in the usual fashion but as rapidly as a force of three thousand men, now being constantly ad-ded to, can build it.

For 300,000 People. For 309,000 People.

Originally planned to accommodate a population of 100,000, the plans have been expanded to a basis of 300,000. The tract of land in which the new industrial city is rapidly taking form is 6,000 acres in extent, with a lake frontage of more than six miles, and with possibilities as to large development.

ossibilities as to inland extension as oundless as the prairies themselves. boundless as the prairies themselves. Perhaps the preliminary work, most of which is already done, is the most interesting, as showing the rapidity of modern processes of city construction. The sand hills and hillocks which to voyagers on Lake Michigan once formed such a picturesque sight, looking on a summer's day with the sun shining on them like cumulus clouds on the horizon, have disappeared along the horizon. shining on them like cumulus clouds on the horizon, have disappeared along that part of the lake. They have been levelled and the sand has been used to fill up the shallow beach, the swamps of Grand Calumet and lower lying lands elsewhere in the tract. The new city by this process and by dredging has attained an elevation of twenty-two feet above the level of Lake Michigan, and thus the work Chicago was compelled to do after its founding was compelled to do after its founding was compelled to do after its founding has been performed at Gary at its beginning. By dredging also a harbor has been formed, deep enough to admit the heaviest freighters of the Great Lakes bringing the iron ore from the Lake Superior region to the iron and steel mills which are the reasons for the city's existence.

Parks and Promenades.

Naturally the mills and the thou-sands of men who will be required to man them have the first place in the plans of the builders. Everything has been subordinated to their convenience, health and comfort, and so far the plans are strictly severe and utilitarian, but the city has also been laid out with a view to architectural effect and heavity with parks promanders and heavity with parks promanders and beauty, with parks, promenades and all the usual appurtenances of modern all the usual appurtenances of modern city life.

The river has been dredged to a uniform width of 250 feet, spanned by steel bridges for the accommodation of the four trunk lines of railway centering here to distribute the products of the mills once these are completed and in full operation. To avoid the constant tearing up of streets for gas, water and were not planned and built, all pipes and mains in Gary are laid in the alleys, each at a certain level, thereby avoiding the confusion worse confounded in cities where pipe-laying is a matter of emergency and suggests a mighty mase without a plan. In Gary everything is planned and everything bears the stamp of to-day.

A Model City.

Nothing is left unprovided that experience has shown to be requisite in a model twentieth century city. It even has a Broadway three miles long, with concrete sidewalks and with two miles on each side of business blocks. It will probably also have a White Way of its own in imitation of its model, for the coming steel capital is not to of its own in imitation of its model, for the coming steel capital is not to be altogether devoted to business, but-will have parks, playgrounds, theatres and opera houses. These, however, will naturally come later, though when they do come they will fit harmonious-ly into the general plan.

Gary is not to be another Pullman, but a city which has had the benefit of that notable experiment and conseof that notable experiment and consequently an improvement upon it. How far it will justify the large and generous hopes of its founders is a question that will be partly answered at least in the near future.

BURGLAR GOES MAD.

A burglar who broke into a boarding house at Blackpool went mad while on the premises, and barricaded himself in one of the rooms by piling furniture against the door. The landlady. In the event, I was allowed to sleep till eight, and it was past eleven before the train pulled in. In a country where trains are, as a rule, anything between four and fourteek hours late, one loses the feeling that time is of any value. There is a good story of some commercial travellers who reached Moose Jaw one day exactly on time. They hastily made up a collection for the engine-driver who had accomplished so unusual a feat. As the train started, he leaned from his cab and called out to them: "Say! didn't you guys know this is yesterday's train?"

However, it would, be worth waiting a week to go through such glorious but not expected till seven. In the

However, it would be worth waiting a week to go through such glorious mountain scenery as I revelled in those two hot June days. From the moment when the train creeps through an invisible gap in the wall of snow-topped summits until, twenty-four hours later, it is running down the Pacific Slope, the track passes through a region which for varied beauty and interest cannot be equalled on any railway in the world. In all, four ranges are crossed, and not a tunnel the whole sed, and not a tunnel the are crossed, and not a tunnel the whole way! In every case a pass was discovered through which the train could toll up and wriggle down, often with only just room to squeeze in on a road cut out of the slopinig bank of a thundering glacier stream. Below, the torrent leaps and foams; on either hand, the rocky heights rise sheer up to the eternal snows. Then the valley opens eternal snows. Then the valley opens out and, perhaps, a little town appears with its neat wooden houses, a store, and an hotel, and pretty fair-haired girls in hats and skirts and blouses which suggest the rector's daughters in an English village. One day these little towns will be as famous as the Swiss resorts, and some of them

Round the town are pastures and cultivated land, and now that we are in British Columbia the trees and vegetation are more luxurant. But soon we are climbing again by the side of a broad, smooth river, which presently broad, smooth river, which presently changes its character and becomes a plunging, rocky brook. Looking up one plunging, rocky brook. Looking up one can see green, gleaming glaciers on the mountain-side, and as evening comes on, the breeze blows cool off the snow-fields. I must say I expected the Gateway of the Far East to be more cosmopolitan. I looked for color and life. The streets are certainly spacious and the shops attractive, but at first the city reminded me more of Brixton than the Shiny East. Perhaps that was because it rained. It rains a good deal on the Pacific coast, which accounts for the vivid greenness of the vegetation and the immense size of the trees in the big and beautiful park of which Vancouver is so justly proud.

Timber is a very profitable industry in British Columbia, though it is only one of the natural products with which the province is endowed. In 1906 minerals, including gold, silver, copper, and lead, produced over £5,000,000; timber close on £2,000,000; fisheries about the same; and farming a little more. And this with a tiny population of 200,000 scottered over a country as big as France with about half of Germany thrown in: Fruit will some day be a great factor in the province's prosperity, and the vast deposits of coal and iron must certainly make it rich in manufactures, At present it needs people badly, and cries aloud for settlers of British blood.

Vancouver itself has rather a lotuseating afr. It prides itself on being "like England," and not so much a boom-city as a place where "a man can have a good time, although he may not make a great deal of money." The frenzied loyalty of Vancouver is quite amusing. One enthusiast expressed to me his regret that the province could not be made a Crown Colony again: "I would fay rather be governed from Homel!" Man Who Escaped From Insane Asylum Run Down by Train.

Kunkakee, Ill., Sept. 4.—A man whose body was found last night mutilated on the track of the Illinois Central railway was identified to-day by Superintendent J. L. He was an epileptic, and it is believed that he fell in a fit on the railroad track and was run over by a train. Steinnamier escaped from the asylum yeaterday atternoon.

Three negroes were arrested at Champaign on suspicion of having murdered the man. They said they were stealing a ride from Chicago to Cairo.

GLUT OF PEARS ON THE LOCAL MARKETS

Controversy Still Rages Dound the Price of Hay-- Few Changes

There are few changes to record in the local market since last Thursday. Potatoes are still at the old figure, but they are weakening somewhat, and the next few days will probably see a drop of 25 cents a sack. Sweet potatoes and lettuce are slightly cheaper, and to-matoes are becoming more plentiful, the outdoor crop being on the market and supplementing the hothouse varie-

In fruits, pears are very plentiful. It will be remembered that last year. In fruits, pears are very plentiful it will be remembered that last year, and it was almost impossible to get pears, but this year they are so plentiful that they are becoming a drug on the market. There is no place in the world where pears can be grown so well as in the Victoria district, and, therefore, it is not surprising that at times there is rather a glut of this lusclous fruit. They can be purchased just now at a low a price as $1 a box, and Bartletts, too, at that. The Bartlett is the king of pears, and this is the Bartlett season. Prunes are here in plenty, but as the prune is very adaptable for long distance shipping, the market is kept pretty well cleared. They are retailing at about 75 cents per crate. Crab apples are now at their best, and fatch 5 cents a pound, the supply being somwhat limited. Peaches are down a little, some varieties being offered at $1.25 a crate. Loganberries are out, and blackberries are almost gone, just a few coming in from vines that have been mulched.

It is almost impossible to set a price It is almost impossible to set a price on hay, for there is scarcely any in the market. The farmers are too busy to ship, and while some of the Fraser farmers are said to be asking $20 a ton, some of the local dealers are still quoting at that figure retail. There seems to be somewhat of a struggle between the bulls and the bears, and which will win out it is difficult to prophecy. The farmer is betting on his side of the question, while the livery men are backing the bears.

welcome and important one te Calgary and the West in general, says the Calgary Herald.

Mr. William Whyte, who drove in an automobile last month over the country to be traversed by the new road, said that in the whole of his official career he had never enjoyed a trip through a district which impressed him so strongly as regards resources, climate and scenery. It is said to be as a direct regult of Mr. Whyte's personal inspection that the company's decision to hasten the completion of the road has been arrived at.

The Kootenay Central will connect the Crow's Nest railway with the main line of the C.P.R. It will run from Golden to Fort Sjeel, and will open up for settlement one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys in the world, the Valley of the Columbia.

The Columbia Valley has a virgin wealth of fruit, grazing and farm lands; it has gold, silver, copper and other minerals; it has lumber, game and fish, and it has a climate remarkable for its mildness. What happier combination could be desired?

It has been said by expert authorities that the Columbia Vailey is the finest apple growing district in British Columbia. It has been producing for many years, without a railway, quantities of the very choicest apples, pears, plums, quinces, cherries, strawberries, and all the smaller fruits. It will grow two and three crops of alfalfa in a year. Its grain crop and vegetables of all kinds are abnormally large. There is no guess-work about these statements:

It is claimed to be in nearly every respect the equal of the famous Niagara Peninsula, and it has more fertile and cultivatable land than two or three Okanagans put to gether. Also it has excellent river navigation. Last, and best of all, it possibles are she were dead. The guide and the other man were badly frogtbitten in the hands and feet.

climb the Birnlucke, which is some 8,000 feet high.

All were wealthy ladies, but not one was equipped for mountaineering. They were wearing Panama or lace hats, light blouses, open-work silk stockings and high-heeled shoes. None of them carried anything stronger than a light parasol. Naturally the guide pointed out the absurdity of their costumes. They refused to listen to his advice, and insisted on carrying out their programme. When they had climbed about 2,000 feet the weather changed suddenly. The wind rose, and snow began to fall in great fakes.

When the guide insisted on the reigun of the party to the valley, Fraulein. Marguerite. Zasdra exclaimed scornfully: "We are paying you for the expedition, and we intend to finish it, whatever happens. If you are afraid, you can go back, but we shall go on."

He expostulated further, but to no purpose, and when the laddes went on he followed them at a little distance. He was joined by three other Alpinists, named Tschuppik, Trestier, and Hof, and they also made fruitless efforts to induce the ladies to return.

Very soon the snow was failing heavily, and the Alpinists were up to their knees. In spite of this, the ladies obstinately persisted in going on, but in another half an hour the snow had reached their waists, and two of the ladies fell exhausted.

After a while the Fraulein Zasdra became delirious, and then the four men carried the five women to the shelter of a rock. WHAT BRITONS EAT. Enormous Increase in the Nation's Meat

Some remarkable figures regarding the manner in which the national food supply has changed are given in a yellow book just issued by the British Board of Agriculture.

In the first place the fact becomes apparent that every year we are becoming more and more dependent on foreign nations for our food, says the London Mail. Twenty years ago the total amount of tood brought to the United Kingdom from across the seas cost us just over £111,000,000. Last year, if the food had been paid for in a lump sum, it would have needed a cheque for £219,000,000.

Here is a striking table comparing the imports of food per head in 1856 with those last year, in pounds;

"TRISTRAM OF BLENT"

BY ANTHONY HOPE

"That's what I wanted." he went on "Now I can say what T have to say."

She sat still. waiting to hear him. There was now no sign of uneasiness about her. She smiled luxurlously, and her eyes were resting on his face with evident pleasure. They were together again as they had been in the Long gallery; the same contentment possessed her. The inner feeling had its outward effect. There came on him the same admiration, the same sense that she commanded his loyalty. When she had come to his rooms that afternoon he had found it easy to rebuke and to rule her. His intent for the evening had been he same; he had sought to bring her to a more friendly mind chiefly that she might accept with greaterly that greaterly the same continued to a proposal had outraged. "Oh, you do talk nonsense!" he groan-But she was too much for him; he ed. But she was too much for him, he laughed too. She had spoken with such a grand security. "If you tell me to walk out of the door I shall go."
"Well, in five minutes. I's very late."
"Oh, we weren't bred in Bayswater," he reminded her.
"I was—in Chelsea."
"So you say. I think in heaven—no.

'So you say. I think in heaven - no ympus-really."

"I was as cool as you were

"You're cool enough now, anyhow." he admitted, in admiration of her party. "Quite, thanks." The hand behind her head trembled sorely. His eyes were on her, and a confusion threatened to overwhelm the composure of which she

"Hang-the thing! If you'd love me. ousin Harry."
"Oh, do drop 'Cousin' Harry!"

"Well, I propose to. But you wouldn't." Her only refuge now was In quips and verbal victories. They served her well, for Harry, less master of himself than usual, was hindefed and tripped up by them. "Still, if we served ner well, for Harry, less master of himself than usual, was hindered and tripped up by them. "Still, if we ever meet again, I'll say 'Harry' if you like."

"Of course we shall meet again," She surprised that out of him.

"It'll be so awkward for me now." she

"It'll be so awkward for me now," she laughed lightly. But her-mirth broke off suddenly as he came closer and stood over her.

"I could hate you for coming to me with that offer." he said.

Almost hating herself now, yet sorely wounded that he should think of hating her, she answered him in a fury.

"Well then, shouldn't I hate you for giving me Blent? That was worse. You could refuse, I couldn't. I have it. I have to keep it." In her excitement she rose and faced him. "And because of you I can't be happy!" she cried resentfully.

of you I can't be happy!" she cried resentfully.

"I see! I ought to have drowned myself. Instead of merely going away? Oh. I know I owe the world at large apologies for my existence, and you in particular, of course! Unfortunately, though, I intend to go on existing; I even intend to live a life of my ownnot the life of a hanger-on — if you'll kindly allow me."

"Would any other man in the world talk like this after—?"
"Any man who had the sense to see what you'd done. I'm bound to be a nuisance to you anyhow. I should be least of a nuisance as your husband! That was it. Oh. I'm past astonishment at you."

vords sounded savage, but it was air flerceness that banished her It was the new light they threw on that impulse of hers. She could only fall back on her old recrimination.

"When you gave me Blent..."
"Hold your tongue about Blent," he

"When you gave me Blent." he commanded imperiously. "If it were mine again, and I came to you and said. 'You're on my conscience, you fret me, you worry me. Marry me, and I shall be more comfortable!' What then?" "Why, it would be just like you to do it!" she cried in malicious triumph. "The sort of thing runs in the family, ithen." She started at the plainness of his sneer. "Oh, yes, that was it. Well, what would your answer be? Shall I tell you? You'd ask the first man who came by to kick me out of the room. And you'd be right."

The truth of his words pierced her. She flushed red, but she was resolved to admit nothing. Before him, at any rate, she would cling to her case, to the view of her own action to which she stood committed. He at least should never know that now at last he had made her bitterly and horribly ashamed, with a shame not for what she had proposed to do herself, but for what she had dead to a sky him to do. She saw ed, with a shame not for what she had proposed to do herself, but for what she had dared to ask him to do. She saw the thing now as he saw it. Had his manner softened, had he made any appeal, had he not lashed her with the bitterest words he could find, she would have been in tears at his feet. But now she faced him so boldly that he took her flush to mean anger. He turned away from her and picked up his hat from the chair on which he had trown it.

"We've had an evening out, my coust'n and I, and I saw her home. And now I'm going home. Nothing wrons, I hope, Madame Zabriska?"
Ceelly raised her head; she was laughing still, with tears in her eyes. Mina looked at her. Considerations of propriety fell into the background.
"But what's it all about?" she cried.
"I'll leave Ceelly to tell you." He was quiet now, but with a victous quietness.

"I'l leave Cecify to tell you." He was quiet now, but with a vicious quietness. "I've been explaining that I have a preference for being left alone. Perhaps it may not be superfluous to mention the fact to you too, Madame Zabriska. My cab's waiting. Goodnight." Harry hesitated a moment, then smil-Harry hesitated a moment, then smll-ed grimly. "I shouldn't be able to complain of that," he said, as he turn-ed and went out to his cab. Cecily threw herself into her chair again. The bewildered Imp stood star-ing at her. "I didn't know where you were."

Mina complained.
"Oh, it doesn't matter."
"Fancy being here with him at this time of the night!"

Cecily gave no signs of hearing this

"You must tell me what it's all about," Mina insisted.
Cecily raised her eyes with a weary air, as though she spoke of a distasteful subject unwillingly and to no good nurpose. "I went to tell him he could get Blent

"I went to tell him he could get Blent back by marrying me."
"Cecily." Many emotions were pack-ed into the cry. "What did he say?"
Cecily seemed to consider for a mo-ment, then she answered slowly:
"Well, he very nearly beat me—and I rather wish he had," she said.
The net result of the day had dis-

The net result of the day had distinctly not been to further certain schemes. All that had been achieved—and both of them had contributed to it—was an admirable example of the Tristram way.

The Persistence of Blent.

Harry Tristram awoke the next Harry Tristram awoke the next morning with visions in his head—no unusual thing with young men, 'yet strange and almost unknown to him. They had not been wont to come at Blent, nor had his affair with Janie. Iver created them. Possibly a constant; although unconsclous, reference of all attractions to the standard, or the tradition, of Addie Tristram's had hitherto kept him free; or perhaps it was merely that there was no striking attractions in the valley of the Blent. Anyhow the visions were here now, a series of the evening before, and embodying for him the manifold changes of feeling which had marked the time. He about. And what are you doing here?

Do you know it's half-past two?"

"It would be all the same to me if it was half-past twenty-two," said Harry contemptuously.

"You've been with her all the time?"

"Oh, lord, yes, Are you the chapes."

"Oh, lord, yes, Are you the chapes."

"We've had an evening out, my cousing and I, and I saw her home. And new I'm going home. Nothing wrons."

In going home. Nothing wrons. I hope. Madame Zabriska?"

thing, though rising out of the old life, fitted in well with the new. Above all, fitted in well with the new. Above all, that sentence of hers rang in his head, its extravagance perhaps gaining preeminence for it: "If ever the time comes, I shall remember!" The time did not seem likely to come—so far as he could interpret the vague and rather threadbare phrase—but her resolution stirred his interest, and ended by exacting his appause, He was glad that she had resisted, and had not allowed herself to be trampled on. Though the threat was very empty, its utterance showed a high spirit. giad that she had resisted, and had not allowed herself to be trampled on. Though the threat was very empty, its utterance showed a high spirit, such a spirit as he still wished to preside over Blent. It was just what his mother might have said, with an equal intensity of determination and an equal absence of definite purpose. But then the whole proceedings had been just what he could imagine his mother bringing about. Consequently he was rather blind to the extraordinary character of the step Cecily had taken; so far he was of the same clay as his cousin. He was nowever, none the less outraged by it, and none, the less sure that he had met it in the right way. Yet he did not consider that there was any real quarrel betwen them, and he meant to see more of her; he was acceptance to "second". meant to see more of her; he was ac-customed to "scenes" occurring and meant to see more of her; he was accustomed to "scenes" occurring and leaving no permanent estrangement or bitterness; the storms blew over the sand, but they did not in the end make much difference in the sand.

There was work to be done—the first grave critical bit of work he had ever had to do, the first real measuring of himself against an opponent of proved abbitty. So he would think no more about the girl, This resolve did not work. She, or rather her apparition, seemed to insist that she had something to do with the work, was concerned in it, or at least meant to look on at it. Harry found that he had small objection, or even a sort of welf-come for her presence. Side by side with the man's pleasure in doing the thirg, there was still some of the boy's delight in showing he could do it. What had passed yesterday, particularly that idea of doing things for him which he had detected and raged at, made it additionally pleasant that he sholed be seen to be capable of doing things. additionally pleasant that he sholud be seen to be capable of doing things for himself. All this was vague, but it was in his mind as he walked to Sloyd's offices.

TRAIN WRECKERS.

Intended to Derail Express But Freight Was Thrown From Tracks Instead.

Pittsburg. Pa., Sept. 5.—Train wreckers. were at work last evening on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Scotthaven and Suterville, thirty miles east of here. Spikes, it is said, were drawn from the eastbound track for the purpose, it is thought, of catching the New York express, which leaves Pittsburg at 9.30 o'clock in 'a evening. The wreckers, however, were deceived by the number of freight and passenger trains passing those points last evening, and the express got through before the spikes were drawn.

The train following it, however, a fast freight express for Philadelphia and New York, was not so fortunate. When the big engine struck the rail from which the spikes had been drawn, the rail turned over, derailing the engine is in the river, which is a distance of from 35 to 40 feet below the eastbound track. Five of the derailed cars turned over and were more or less wrecked, merchandise being scattered along the track, while the other cars blocked both tracks. #### VICTORIA TO HAVE EXCLUSION LEAGUE

Trades and Labor Council Hopes to Guard Against Asiatic . Coolie Immigration.

Victoria is to have an Oriental Exlusion League. Last night the permanent committee appointed by trades and labor council to watch the developments in the immigration of Oriental coolies and to make recommenations from time to time, reported to the council, and one of their most important recommendations was that public meeting should be called in the near future to form a branch of the exclusion league, which was given birth some time ago in Vancouver. The matter was left in the hands of the executive committee for action. In the meantime the council is in correspondence with the organizations, both in ouver and Seattle, to find out just what has been done and what their inentions are for the future. They are also arranging a meeting with Hon. William Templeman to find out the views of the Dominion government and views of the Dominion government and to discuss the matter with him.

The action of the school board in excluding the Chinese from the schools was endorsed, and the delegates to the trades congress at Winnipeg were instructed to co-operate with the other British Columbia delegates in order to have the congress adopt the strongest possible measures to bring before the government the necessity of excluding all Asiatic coolies from the country.

government the necessity of excluding all Asiatic coolies from the country.

The sum of $300 was voted by the council for the purpose of paying the expenses of 'Delegates Watters and Sivertz to the trades congress, to be held in Winnipeg, commencing to-morrow. Delegate Sivertz is already in Brantford attending a letter carriers' convention, and he will return to Winnipeg, in time for the congress.

The executive committee reported that Captain Cox, on behalf of the that Captain Cox, on behalf of the pilots, had met the committee and had asked for their support in the matter of increased pilotage dues and compulsory pilotage. Action was deferred until the members should have an opportunity of looking the matter up, but the balance of opinion seemed to favor the making of this a national free port. Delegate Gilligan, chairman of the library committee, reported that he had interviewed the library commissioners, and they had assured him that they were ready to procure such books for the library as the council might recommend. The secretary was instructed to write them thanking them for what they had done in this matter in the past.

The meeting then adjourned. THE CULLINAN DIAMOND.

History of Gem Which General Boths Proposes to Present to the King.

The Cullinan diamond which General Boths proposes should be presented by the Transvaal to the King, is the largest in the world. It is valued by experts at 156,000. But nothing like this sum will have to be paid by the Transvaal government for possession of the jewel. Three-fifths of the Premier mine, where the wonderful stone was discovered, belongs to the government, and consequently about £60,000 would only be paid. In making the proposal to the Transvaal legislative assembly General Botha said that as the stone was the most valuable ever discovered it was pre-eminently fitted "to be the brightest jewel in the Imperial crown."

It was a glint of sunshine that led to the discovery of the great Cullinan diamond. An official of the Premier Company one day saw a bright facet gleaming in the clay on the mineside. He went to the spot and dug out the diamond with a case-knife. This was on January 26th, 1905.

It was named after Mr. Cullinan, the discoverer of the mine, and one of the directors, who had floated the mine. In only one way can the immense size and remarkable value of the Cullinan diamond be appreciated, and that is by comparing it with the other big diamonds of the world. The largest diamonds known are:

Cullinan—3,032 carats, uncut.

Excelsion—969 carats, uncut.

Excelsior-969 carats, uncut.

Great Mogul-280 carats, cut. Great Mogui-280 carats, cut.
Regent-410 carats, uncut.
Orloff—193 carats, uncut.
Koh-1-moor—900 carats, uncut, and 106 after the second cutting.
The Excelsior, the most recently discovered of these, was valued at f1,000,000 in its natural state, but it has now

The Great Mogul has vanished since

The Pit, or Regent, diamond is the The Pit, or Regent, diamond is the most valuable stone in existence next to the Cullinan. Though by cutting its weight was reduced to about 137 carats, it was sold by Thomas Pitt, grandfather of the first Earl of Chatham, to the King of France for £200,000, and is now valued at £450,000. It was discovered in 1701 in the Parteal mine by a slave, who sold it for a seamon, who

The Orloff diamond was, it is said, stolen from the eye of an Indian idol, and now figures in the Czar's septru. It was purchased by the Count Orloff or 190,000, Catherine II., of Russia, paying this sum and annuity of 11,000.

The Koh-i-noor, perhaps the most famous of all diamonds, became the property of the late Queen Victoria in 1850, when the Punjab was annexed by the East India Company. In 1851 it was inconvention, and he will return to Winnipeg in time for the congress.
